Cash Box was founded by Bill Gersh in 1942. George Albert took ownership from the late 1950s until his passing in 1997. In 2006, Bruce Elrod, a music professional and record producer, revived the magazine as an online publication with the revised name, Cashbox. Bruce partnered with music promoter and magazine publisher, Randall Wilds, in 2018. This partnership re-established Cashbox as a printed publication. Today, Wilds & Associates continues the publication of Cashbox with integrity and pride, preserving the legacy of its founders and former owners - the late Bill Gersh, George Albert, and Bruce Elrod.

We sat down with the Indiana-born singer, songwriter, Army veteran, and father of four to talk about music, resilience, and his relentless fight to be heard in today's industry.

Born to Sing, Built to Survive

The Unbreakable Spirit of Gary Chamberlain

By Malik Riaz

When you listen to Gary Chamberlain sing, you're not just hearing a voice, you're hearing a lifetime of stories, grit, heartbreak, and redemption. You're hearing a man who has lived boldly, served honorably, and risen above tragedies that would silence most. You're also hearing "Little Gary," the son he tragically lost and continues to honor through every note he sings.

Early Beginnings

Gary's musical journey began before most kids even had a curfew. "At 14, I put on a concert for the student staff and faculty at Hamilton Southeastern Junior High School," he recalls with a smile. "I was writing my own original music, performing as a lead vocalist, and playing at local events. That's when I started gaining attention."

By that time, Gary was also heavily involved in athletics, including football, basketball, cross-country, and wrestling, but music kept calling him back. And it wasn't long before Indiana took notice.

Gary was selected by sportscaster Dave Calabro for Dave's Team, a popular news segment on WTHR Channel 13. Soon after, Fox 59 featured him performing the National Anthem at a high school football game, and even spotlighted how his original songs were played over the PA system during school passing periods.

"That was surreal, hearing my own music echoing through the hallways, that's when I knew this was bigger than a hobby," Gary says.

'Teen Country Magazine' soon featured him, and that's when things really exploded. Gary began touring and opening for national recording artists while still a teenager.

Sharing the Stage with Legends

The list of musicians Chamberlain has performed with reads like a Country Music Hall of Fame roster: Garth Brooks, Vince Gill, Martina McBride, The Charlie Daniels Band, Tracy Lawrence, Mark Chesnutt, Little Texas, Lady Antebellum, and Ronnie Milsap.

"In the mid-1990s, I opened for Garth Brooks," Gary recalls. "I was lucky enough to learn how to play The Dance from Garth's guitar player, Ty England."

Another memory still makes him laugh. "I remember hanging out with Steve Wariner and Keith Urban at a cabin in Kentucky. Steve was teaching Keith a guitar lick for Where the Blacktop Ends. Watching them work was magic."

But even with his rising star, Chamberlain stepped back from music at 18 to decide whether he wanted to continue his career independently, without his parents' support system.

Service, Sacrifice, and Heartbreak

Gary joined the Army National Guard and proudly served his country. In 2005, his unit, the Indiana National Guard's 38th Infantry Division, became one of the first National Guard units deployed to Mississippi after Hurricane Katrina.

"We were part of Task Force Cyclone, we provided humanitarian assistance, security, and road clearing," Gary explains.

But in 2006, tragedy shattered Gary's world. While drilling at Camp Atterbury, his First Sergeant pulled him aside: "his home was on fire."

Gary lost his 2-year-old son, Garrison Grant Chamberlain, the first fire-related fatality the town had seen in 50 years. The community mourned deeply, and Gary channeled his grief into his music.

For years, Gary dedicated himself to public service working as a police officer with the Marion County Sheriff's Department and later as an operations manager for a security company. Today, he is working toward launching his own security-focused business.

A Daughter's Words That Changed Everything

It wasn't a manager, producer, or agent who brought Gary back to music. It was his daughter, Layla Ruth.

"One evening I was playing my guitar after work, and she said, 'Dad, you just need to do music again'."

That was all it took. Gary returned to writing and recording with renewed passion. And it didn't take long for the industry to respond.

His 2023 hit Like Johnny Cash was nominated at the Josie Music Awards for 'Song of the Year' and his band was nominated 'Band of the Year.' The tribute track was inspired by his love for Cash's authenticity and honesty.

"I wondered what kind of song Johnny Cash would release if he were still alive today," he said. "That's how I wrote Like Johnny Cash."

The Battle of the Modern Independent Artist

Gary is candid about the challenges of today's streaming-driven world: "It's challenging to be heard in the modern music environment... but I refuse to give up."

He emphasizes that his mission is to create music that resonates with people. "I hope my songs, especially the lyrics - resonate with others. That's the entire reason I write, play, and perform music."

New Releases & Public Praise

In June of last year, Gary released Need a Shot of You Again, followed in July by Just Go to Church, a deeply personal reflection on loss, healing, and hope.

"The lyrics and music are beautiful. There's pain and honesty," says Ryan Ahlwardt, host of Indy Now on Fox 59.

Fans across states agree:

"Great band and great people. Love the hit single Like Johnny Cash," says Ryan Edwards of Lapel, Indiana.

"This dude rocks, I'd go see him anytime!!" adds Joseph DeSario of Spring Hill, Florida.

A Story for the Ages

Gary's life, marked by soaring highs and unimaginable lows, has shaped him into an artist with profound emotional depth.

"The losses and challenges I faced taught me to appreciate and master the art of writing, singing, and playing music," he says. "Never give up on your dreams."

His commitment is clear: No AI. No shortcuts. Just genuine, human music.

DAVID MIKEAL

The Architect of Modern American Sound

By Cory Parker

For more than four decades, David Mikeal has been quietly shaping the sound of American music - not from the front pages of tabloids or the glare of celebrity culture, but from the control rooms, scoring stages, and creative trenches where real artistry is forged.

Composer. Producer. Multi-instrumentalist. Engineer. Vocalist. Mikeal is the rare figure whose fingerprints can be found across Rock, Pop, Film, Television, and the ever-expanding world of sync licensing.

Today, he stands as one of the most versatile and respected creators in the industry, a veteran whose catalog bridges legacy credibility with fresh cinematic power. Signed to Galaxy Class Records - the flagship label of Galaxy Class Entertainment Inc. - Mikeal serves as lead vocalist, writer, and co-producer for the acclaimed group Creation V. It's a role that showcases not only his musicality, but his instinct for emotional precision and commercial clarity.

"I've always believed that music should move people - whether it's a three-minute single or a thirty-second cue, it has to mean something," Mikeal says. That philosophy has become the through-line of a career defined by both craftsmanship and conviction.

Mikeal's journey began on the national stage with A&M Records' band MPG, where he served as lead guitarist and vocalist. He later became a featured artist on CBS's Parc Records with the group BIGSHOT, earning early acclaim for his dynamic performance style and songwriting instincts.

Those early recordings - now reissued internationally through Melodic Rock Classics - have found new life with a generation rediscovering the golden era of melodic Rock. Releases with Lowery Records (CYCLE), Retrospect Records (DAVID, TIN HOUSE), and others expanded his catalog and cemented his reputation as a writer with both edge and accessibility.

His Billboard songwriting achievement award stands as a testament to that enduring voice. But Mikeal never allowed himself to be defined by one lane. Instead, he built a career that moves fluidly between genres, formats, and mediums - a rare versatility that has become his signature.

In the world of visual media, David Mikeal has become a trusted storyteller. His full original score for the feature film The Legend of Kate Kensington introduced audiences to his ability to translate emotion into orchestration. Since 2015, he has served as a lead composer for NBC's Outdoor Sports Network, crafting themes and cues that elevate the network's visual identity.

His work has also appeared across MTV Viacom and other major platforms, spanning everything from atmospheric underscore to bold thematic material.

"When you're scoring for picture, you're not just writing music, you're writing emotion, tension, release, and story," Mikeal explains. "The job is to make the audience feel something before they even know why."

That instinct - to serve the story first - is what makes his compositions so effective for film, documentary, commercial, and episodic television.

While many know Mikeal for his performance and composition, insiders know him equally as a master producer and engineer. As owner and head engineer of Studio Live USA, he has built a creative hub capable of handling everything from full-band tracking to orchestral recording.

His engineering résumé reads like a cross-section of modern music history: Don Henley (Gold-certified Cass County), Pat Travers Band, Silento, Badfinger, Third World, Claudia Leitte, and more.

His philosophy in the studio is refreshingly grounded. "I'm happy to do any and everything that anybody wants to do. I'm not offended, you know?" he told Recording Connection, reflecting on the modern collaborative landscape. "If you recorded something at home and want to take it up a couple notches, come to us. We'll mix it for you."

It's a posture of service - not ego - that has made him one of the most in-demand engineers in the Orlando area.

Through Galaxy Class Entertainment Inc., a curated library of Mikeal's sync-ready compositions is now available for licensing, a treasure trove for music supervisors seeking depth, emotional clarity, and broadcast-ready production.

His catalog is uniquely positioned: rich with legacy credibility, yet fresh enough to meet the demands of modern cinematic storytelling.

Whether it's a feature film, a documentary, a commercial, or a streaming series, Mikeal's music carries the weight of experience and the immediacy of contemporary sound design. "Music is a language that works in every medium," he says. "If you understand people, you understand how to write for them."

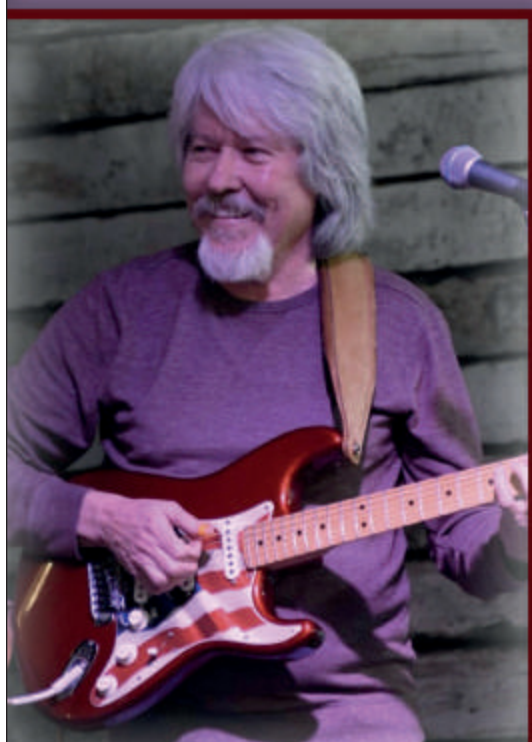

David Mikeal is not a relic of a past era - he is a creator in full stride. With Creation V, he continues to push boundaries. With Studio Live USA, he continues to shape the next generation. With his expanding sync catalog, he continues to influence the emotional architecture of film and television.

He is, in every sense, an architect of modern American sound - a craftsman whose work resonates across decades, formats, and audiences.

And he's far from finished.

If That Ain't True Love

The Hardest Working Man in Gospel Music Continues to Inspire the World

By Jackson McKee

From the sun-soaked streets of Pasadena to the bright lights of Billboard charts and blockbuster film studios, Grammy-winning artist Brent Jones has spent his life turning passion into purpose. With a career defined by innovation, a tireless work ethic, and an unwavering commitment to uplifting others, Jones stands tall as one of Gospel music's most influential voices.

A Musical Spark Ignited Early

Born in Pasadena, California, and raised in Orange County, Brent grew up as an only child with a vibrant love for music. He remembers falling in love with the smooth melodies of '70s Yacht Rock and the rich grooves of R&B. But it was the electrifying sound of Gospel choir music that shifted the entire course of his life.

He recalls a pivotal moment from childhood: "Mesmerized by the choir director and the control he had over the singers and band, I told my parents that I wanted to be a choir director/musician for my life's work."

His parents encouraged his passion immediately buying him a piano that same week. Brent began classical training at age seven and later studied Jazz theory, a turning point that expanded his understanding of Gospel harmony and musical expression. By his early teens, he was already performing with adult choirs and composing original songs for the youth choir, inspired by his godfather.

Breaking Barriers With T.P. Mobb

In 1992, Brent formed the pioneering Gospel group Brent Jones & The T.P. Mobb, a dynamic, trendsetting ensemble of young performers who blended R&B, Hip-Hop, and Contemporary Gospel. At a time when the Gospel world leaned heavily toward traditional sounds, T.P. Mobb shook the landscape with fresh choreography, urban fashion, and chart-topping hits like Goodtime, Don't Wait Till Midnight, and Rich.

The group became a catalyst for future stars. Many music historians credit Brent's innovation as laying the groundwork for artists like Kirk Franklin and the modern era of Urban Contemporary Gospel. His contribution is no small footnote; it is a defining chapter in Gospel music history.

A Career Marked by Extraordinary Achievements

Across the decades, Brent Jones has built an extraordinary body of work creating, teaching, directing, and performing with the world's biggest artists, universities, and churches. His achievements read like a highlight reel of Gospel excellence.

Career Highlights

- Billboard #1 for "Live Your Best Life!" (2024)
- Billboard #1 for "Nothing Else Matters" (2023)
- Billboard #1 for "Trolls World Tour Soundtrack" (2020)
- RIAA Platinum Certification for Childish Gambino's "Awaken My Love"
- 2025 Stellar Award – Youth Album of the Year
- 2023 Stellar Award – Choir of the Year
- Three consecutive Dove Award nominations (2023–2025)
- Artist-In-Residence at Stanford University
- Professor of Music – College of Southern Nevada
- Cover of Gospel USA Magazine – April 2025
- Historic 4-Album "Quadruple Release" in 2025

And this list barely scratches the surface of a career spanning countless collaborations, tours, and creative ventures.

The Collaborator From Hollywood to Hitmakers

One of Brent's most celebrated roles is his work behind the scenes. As vocal director and arranger for Childish Gambino's Grammy-nominated album "Awaken My Love," Brent contributed to a project that went on to sell over a million copies. He also worked alongside Oscar-winning composer Ludwig Göransson and Justin Timberlake on the wildly successful Trolls World Tour soundtrack.

Over the years, he has collaborated with a star-studded lineup including Ariana Grande, Mary J. Blige, and George Clinton. This cross-genre versatility is a hallmark of Brent's musical genius.

Chart-Toppers, Choirs, and New Music

Brent's 2023 album "Nothing Else Matters" soared to #1 on the Billboard Gospel Chart, earning the Stellar Award for 'Choir of the Year.' His 2024 hit Live Your Best Life! followed with another #1 celebration infused with Washington, D.C. Go-Go flavor. Most recently, his youth choir's release "Brent Jones Presents The Fire" earned him yet another Stellar Award in 2025.

His current radio single, Praise in the Choir Stand, is climbing the charts and reconnecting audiences with the heart of Gospel choir music. "Praise is our best spiritual weapon to change situations 'That's how we win!'" Brent says.

Looking ahead, fans can anticipate his 2026 inspirational R&B album "Enjoy Your Life," already in production.

The Challenges Behind the Triumphs

Despite extraordinary success, Brent remains transparent about the difficult side of life on the road. "Touring means extensive periods of time away from my loved ones," he shares, acknowledging the emotional cost of performing 150+ dates each year. He also admits that trying to please everyone can be exhausting. "Don't follow trends... find your own musical lane and be comfortable in it." Brent reflects.

A Mission Beyond Music

Beyond the stage and studio, Brent is deeply concerned with the spiritual and cultural climate of the modern church. He observes that clout-chasing and attention-seeking have overshadowed true purpose. "Attention and clout have become the new drugs," he says, emphasizing that effectiveness, not fame, must remain the goal.

His long-term dream is to establish a nonprofit dedicated to teaching songwriting and performance to youth and emerging artists.

An Experience Fans Never Forget

A Brent Jones concert is far more than music's a full experience. Audiences can expect to dance, laugh, sing, cry, and most importantly, leave transformed. His mission is simple yet powerful: to encourage everyone to "Live Your Best Life!"

With passion, purpose, and a legacy of groundbreaking artistry, Brent Jones continues to be one of Gospel's most inspiring and innovative voices.

The Music Lives On

We pause to remember these individuals whose music and legacies will live on in the hearts of music fans for generations.

Staff, Cashbox

Raul Malo

August 7, 1965 - December 8, 2025

There are voices that entertain, voices that impress, and then there are voices that alter the landscape. Raul Malo belonged to that rare third category. For more than three decades, his majestic baritone - equal parts operatic power, Cuban soul, and country grit - reshaped American music and expanded the borders of what a band could be.

To speak of Malo is to speak of color, movement, and emotion. His sound was never confined to a single lane. It was a tapestry woven from the rhythms of his Miami upbringing, the heritage of his Cuban parents, and the restless creativity that defined his life. When he co-founded The Mavericks in 1989, he didn't just start a band, he launched a musical revolution.

With Malo at the helm, The Mavericks became one of the most genre-defying groups of their era. They blended Country with Rock and Roll, Jazz, Tejano, Bolero, and Big-Band swagger. They delivered hits that became instant classics - songs like What a Crying Shame and All You Ever Do Is Bring Me Down - and they did it with a sound that was unmistakably their own. Awards followed: a Grammy, multiple CMA 'Group of the Year' honors, and a fiercely loyal fanbase that stretched across continents.

But accolades only tell part of the story. Malo's true legacy lies in the way he connected people. He was often described as a "cultural bridge," a title he wore with quiet pride. Whether singing in English or Spanish, fronting The Mavericks or exploring his solo work, he carried the heart of two worlds and made them one. His 2020 all-Spanish album, "En Español," wasn't a departure, it was a homecoming, a celebration of roots that resonated far beyond the Latin community.

Even as life brought its hardest challenges, Malo remained a storyteller. When he was diagnosed with Stage 4 colon cancer in 2024, he chose transparency over silence. He continued to perform, to write, to speak to his audience with honesty and grace. Fans watched not just a musician, but a man of courage - still giving, still creating, still reaching for connection.

Those closest to him describe him as a force of nature. A spark in every room. A laugh that filled the air. A talent that refused to be boxed in. His bandmates often said that Raul didn't just sing a song - he inhabited it. He made music feel alive.

And that is the legacy he leaves behind: a body of work that transcends genre, a career that defied expectation, and a voice that will echo for generations.

On December 8, 2025, Raul Francisco Martínez-Malo Jr. - known to the world simply as Raul Malo - passed away at his home in Nashville at the age of 60, following a courageous and very public battle with cancer. His departure came just days after a two-night tribute concert at the Ryman Auditorium, a final outpouring of love for a man whose music had shaped so many lives.

He was, and remains, one of the great American originals.

Walt Aldridge

November 12, 1955 – November 19, 2025

Some people leave a mark on the world through a single gift. Walt Aldridge left his through many. Musician. Songwriter. Producer. Engineer. Teacher. Mentor. Friend. Yet even those titles feel too small for a man whose life shaped the sound of Muscle Shoals and touched hearts far beyond Alabama's borders.

To understand Walt is to understand devotion - to his craft, to his family, and to the faith that carried him through every season. Born on November 12, 1955, in Florence, Alabama, he grew up surrounded by the warmth of Southern family life and the musical heartbeat of the Shoals. Those early years planted seeds that would grow into one of the most respected careers in American songwriting.

Walt's journey began at the legendary FAME Studios, where he worked alongside Rick Hall and an extraordinary circle of musicians who helped define an era. It was there that Walt's gifts blossomed, not only as a performer, but as a writer with a rare ability to capture emotion with clarity and truth.

His songs were recorded by major artists across genres, earning him industry acclaim and ultimately induction into both the Nashville Songwriters Hall of Fame and the Alabama Music Hall of Fame.

But Walt never chased spotlight or applause. His work was driven by something deeper - a desire to serve the song, honor the craft, and tell stories that mattered. Those who knew him often said that Walt didn't just write music; he felt it, lived it, and poured his whole heart into it.

Beyond the studio, Walt was a man of many passions. He loved hunting, fishing, traveling, and woodworking. But nothing brought him more joy than tending his garden. Every spring and summer, he grew vegetables and flowers with the same care he gave to his music. He often said the garden made him feel close to his father - a quiet, sacred connection that grounded him.

And yet, for all his accomplishments, Walt's greatest pride was his family. He was a loving son, a devoted husband, a kind father, a faithful friend. Time with them was his truest joy, the place where his heart found rest.

For nearly a decade, Walt poured his wisdom into the next generation as a professor in the Entertainment Industry Department at the University of North Alabama. Students remember him not just as a teacher, but as a mentor who believed in them, challenged them, and helped them find their own creative voice. His influence lives on in every life he shaped.

Walt's journey through illness in his final years revealed the depth of his faith. He faced every challenge with courage, anchored by the assurance that his healing - full and complete - awaited him in the presence of Jesus. That confidence gave him peace, and it gave his family strength.

On November 19, 2025, after a long and courageous battle, James Walton Aldridge, Jr. entered the arms of his Savior at the age of 70. His passing marked the close of a remarkable earthly chapter, but his legacy, like the songs he wrote, continues to echo.

He leaves behind a life rich in love, rooted in faith, and overflowing with the music that will outlive us all.

CARL WAYNE MEEKINS

Let's get it!

Carl Wayne Meekins is the kind of artist who doesn't just take the stage - he transforms it. With a voice shaped by Rock, Country, and Gospel, and a heart shaped by faith, gratitude, and second chances, he has built a life that sings far beyond the microphone.

By Robin Tanner

Some artists spend their lives chasing applause. Others spend their lives chasing purpose. Carl Wayne Meekins somehow manages to chase both - not out of ego, but out of gratitude. His motto, shouted with the enthusiasm of a man who refuses to waste a single breath, is simple: "LET'S GET IT!" It's not a slogan. It's not a brand. It's a worldview. It means: Let's make something good happen today. Let's lift somebody up. Let's do something that matters.

And if you follow the trail of his life - from a childhood attic in Chesapeake, Virginia, to the honky-tonks and churches of Nashville, to rodeo arenas and veterans' halls across America - you'll see that he has lived that motto with remarkable consistency. Music is his craft, but generosity is his calling. Faith is his anchor. And gratitude is the engine that drives everything he touches.

Every great story has a moment when everything changes. For Carl Wayne, that moment happened in an attic - dusty, dim, and filled with forgotten relics of a life he didn't yet know belonged to him.

He and his twin brother, Cliff, were just kids, full of curiosity and mischief, when they climbed the ladder and discovered a treasure chest of drums, guitars, and old equipment. They had no idea their father had once been a musician. They only knew that something inside them lit up.

"We found drums and other instruments, and it blew our minds," he remembers. "Dad brought the drums down and played them, and everything made sense. That was the moment my brother and I started chasing the music within us."

From that day forward, the Meekins townhouse became a makeshift concert hall. The stereo was always loud. The bass always thumped. The neighbors always complained. And the boys always kept playing. They weren't trying to be musicians - they were simply trying to feel something. And music made them feel alive.

Even now, decades later, Carl Wayne laughs at how little has changed. "Even now, when my wife and daughter are out of the house, I still crank the music up and the eight-year-old kid comes out in me!"

His musical education came not from textbooks or formal lessons, but from vinyl records, 8-tracks, and the emotional imprint of moments that never left him. Riding in the car with his dad meant Queen, Tom Jones, and whatever 8-track happened to be in rotation. Visiting his grandmother meant Elvis' Gospel records spinning on the turntable. And then came the moment that sealed his fate: watching "Aloha from Hawaii" after Elvis' passing. "He hit that stage with his eagle cape and that massive production... I was glued like a moth to a flame."

From there, the soundtrack of his life expanded - Glen Campbell, Ronnie Milsap, Motown, and eventually Barry Manilow, whose song I Write the Songs became the first record ever given to him. He played in garage bands, high school bands, and anywhere else that would let him plug in an electric guitar.

But it wasn't until a friend handed him a cassette tape - Alan Jackson's "Chattahoochee" - that he realized what kind of writer he wanted to be. "That's when I realized what hooks were. I fell in love with 90s Country... especially the steel guitar. I got on the 90s Country bandwagon and I haven't left since."

Music shaped his talent, but faith shaped his character. Carl Wayne is open about the fact that his walk with Christ has had seasons of strength and seasons of struggle. But moving to Nashville became a turning point. "I learned about grace," he says. "There is nothing I can do to earn God's grace. God gives the free gift of grace - so use it."

Then came 2020, the year that nearly ended everything. He contracted Covid, was hospitalized twice, and watched a close friend die from the same illness. The fear was real. The uncertainty was suffocating. And the spiritual reckoning was unavoidable.

"I thought, I'm not going to make it," he says quietly. "I remembered the scripture that says life is but a vapor. I told Tonya, 'We came to this town to make records. I feel like I have a second chance at life. God was saying, I'm gonna give you another chance, and we're gonna do it My way.'"

That brush with death didn't just change his perspective. It changed his purpose.

Carl Wayne grew up receiving generosity - instruments, opportunities, encouragement. So when God restored his health, he knew exactly what he wanted to do with that second chance. "I love entertaining and stirring emotions in people," he says. "I decided if I can ever afford it, I want to give people the opportunity to do something with their life, just like I was given."

So he began buying guitars at wholesale and giving them away. At first, it was a handful. Then a few dozen. Today, the number is approaching one hundred.

And something unexpected happened: Veterans kept winning them. "What are you showing me here, God?" he wondered. "Imagine what a guitar can do as a therapy tool for PTSD... or for Alzheimer's and dementia."

That realization became the heartbeat of his Play It Forward campaign. He began partnering with veteran organizations, hosting luncheons, giving guitars away, performing concerts, and ending each trip by singing in a local church as a personal thank-you to the Lord. "It's been wonderful," he says. "A highlight of my trips is singing on Sunday mornings."

A Carl Wayne Meekins concert is more than a show. It's an experience - part revival, part celebration, part family gathering. He tells stories. He laughs. He cries. He gets the crowd involved. He gives away a guitar. And he pours every ounce of himself into the moment. "We play originals and 90s Country covers," he says. "It's warmth to the soul."

His song Pebble has become the unofficial anthem of his mission, a reminder that small acts of kindness create ripples that change lives.

"I hope someone hears the song and it resonates," he says. "Maybe they'll go help someone. God gives us all talents and gifts. Pay it forward. Give unconditionally with no strings attached."

Carl Wayne doesn't measure success the way the world does. He measures it in lives touched, guitars given, prayers answered, and moments where God's presence feels unmistakable. He dreams of playing the Grand Ole Opry. He hopes to tour out west. He plans to release more music. But he holds all of it loosely.

"I'm gonna rely on God's timing," he says. "If you took everything away and asked if it was worth it - 100%. I can go anywhere and know I am in the will of God."

And that is the essence of Carl Wayne Meekins: a man who survived, a man who believes, a man who gives, and a man who lives every day with the same fire that first sparked in an attic full of forgotten instruments.

Haven Slay

A Bluegrass Heart with a Wide-Open Horizon

By Cory Parker

Haven Slay is one of those rare young artists whose story feels both timeless and brand new. Rooted in a deep family tradition of Bluegrass, yet shaped by a life that's carried her from the Gulf Coast to the Rocky Mountains, she brings a soulful authenticity to every stage she steps onto. With a fiddle in her hands, a voice full of heart, and a mission to bring peace and happiness to those who listen, Haven is quickly emerging as one of the most compelling new voices in Americana and Bluegrass.

Some artists grow into music slowly, discovering their voice over time. Haven Slay was born into it. Raised in the warm Gulf Coast city of Pensacola, Florida, she grew up in a home where instruments leaned in corners like old friends and harmonies floated through the air like part of the weather.

Music wasn't an activity - it was a way of life. "I was born into a musical family," Haven says. "My dad, Scott, plays guitar and mandolin. My Pawpaw plays banjo and dobro. My grandma, Grams, plays upright bass. And my mom and Grammy both sing beautifully." With a lineage like that, it's no surprise that Haven began singing at just two years old and picked up the fiddle at three. "My dad asked if I wanted to play, and of course I said yes," she laughs. "I fell in love with music very early in life."

One of her earliest memories is standing onstage with her dad and Pawpaw, performing Alison Krauss' rendition of When You Say Nothing at All. She was just a little girl, but the moment lit a spark that has never gone out. By age six, she was taking formal violin lessons and soon joined the Emerald Coast Honors Orchestra, performing at community events and even Disney World.

Her childhood was a blend of Florida sunshine and cross-country adventure. Haven spent most of the year with her mom in Pensacola, but summers were spent traveling with her dad to Virginia Beach, Silver Spring, Centennial, and Denver. Those miles shaped her. "It gave me a wide lens on the world, and on the stages music could reach," she says.

At fifteen, a move to Longmont, Colorado opened a new chapter. Haven joined her school's choir and began performing more frequently with her dad's Colorado-based Bluegrass band, Slay & Stinson. From intimate venues to notable stages like Cavefest in Nashville, the band's momentum grew, and so did Haven's confidence as both a performer and a songwriter.

By sixteen, she was playing gigs regularly. "I've enjoyed playing with so many talented musicians and bands," she says. "Shoutout to Five Foot Betty, Slay & Stinson, and GirlGrass!" Five Foot Betty - all-female Sunny Americana group featuring Sharon Glassman, Pam Browning, and Liz Patton - became a creative home for her. So did GirlGrass, her heartfelt acoustic duo with singer-songwriter Sarah Minto-Sparks. Their performance at the SnowyGrass Bluegrass Festival in Estes Park, Colorado became a highlight of her summer.

But one of the biggest turning points came when Dog House Music Studios in Lafayette, Colorado awarded Haven a full scholarship to professionally record three original songs. "It was such a blessing," she says. "They believed in my story and my music." That opportunity opened the door to a collaboration with Buckshot Records and Artist Development in Boyce, Louisiana, a partnership she speaks of with genuine excitement. "I'm so thankful to be signed to Buckshot Music Records. They really rock! It's exciting to share my songs with those listening and see what happens."

Her first releases are now underway, including the highly anticipated Alabama Sugar (Bluegrass Mix). It's a milestone that feels both surreal and deeply earned.

Yet, for all the stages she's played, all the songs she's written, and all the doors opening before her, Haven's mission remains beautifully simple. "I just want to bring peace and happiness to those who listen," she says. It's a sentiment that reflects not only her artistry, but her heart - steady, soulful, and rooted in the traditions that raised her.

With a voice shaped by Bluegrass heritage, a spirit shaped by travel and family, and a future shaped by hard work and authenticity, Haven Slay is a rising artist whose journey is only just beginning. And if her story so far is any indication, the road ahead is wide open.

DENNIS

Dennis Lowery's "Old Johnny" delivers a gut-punch wake-up call in the November 2025 Issue. Indie Country powerhouse Dennis Lowery is turning heads and cranking up the volume with "Old Johnny", the gritty anthem that's just stormed to #26 on Cashbox Magazine's Independent Country chart.

Fresh off the heels of his acclaimed releases like "Old Man In The Corner" and "What I'm Supposed To Know," this track proves Lowery's unerring knack for mining real-life scars into gold-standard storytelling. At its core, "Old Johnny" is a raw confession drawn straight from Lowery's own barroom battles—those hazy nights tangled with the wrong crowd, where a "pretty good friend" named Johnny Walker whispers sweet nothings before the red-and-blues light up your rearview.

It's a foot-stompin' cautionary tale about how one bad habit spirals into a lifetime of spoiled roads, nodding to Johnny Cash's Folsom Prison Blues with that inescapable pull of regret and the rails you can't outrun, all wrapped in a modern edge that hits like a hangover you can't sleep off.

"We all chase that easy escape," Lowery says, "but this one's about staring it down and choosing the exit ramp to take the off beaten path." Streaming now on all major platforms, "Old Johnny" is the perfect porch-swing companion for anyone who's ever flirted with the devil in a bottle. With its infectious chorus and tele pickin', it's already racking up spins from indie radio tastemakers and fans craving country that cuts deep without the polish."

Noble Hops Open 'The Trunk' - A Powerful Reflection on Family, War, and Redemption

American Rock and Roll band Noble Hops release their deeply moving new single, The Trunk, now available on all major streaming platforms. The song offers a heartfelt look at the lasting scars of war and the struggles of the American working class.

Written by Utah Burgess, The Trunk unfolds like a generational letter - a son uncovering his father's hidden past through the artifacts left behind in an old chest. Through vivid storytelling and raw emotion, the lyrics capture the impact of the Vietnam War on one man's life and how those reverberations echo through his family.

"The foreign policy of the United States has wreaked havoc on the lives of so many people - not only abroad, but right here at home," says Burgess. "Addiction. Homelessness. Twenty-two veterans a day, they say, are taking their lives as they try to cope with what they've experienced. In no way am I suggesting this is every veteran's plight, but it's unacceptable. The Trunk may be set in the Vietnam era, but sadly, the story hasn't changed much since."

The track was recorded at Rattle Clack Studio in Pittsburgh, PA, with Jazz Byers producing alongside Burgess. Byers also contributed percussion and acoustic guitar, while Mike Ofca handled mixing and mastering. The single reunites the creative team behind Noble Hops' Josie Award-nominated song Kelso Beach.

The band - Utah Burgess (vocals, rhythm guitar), Tony Vilella (lead guitar, backing vocals), Johnny "Sleeves" Costa (bass, backing vocals), and "The" Brad Hulburt (drums) - continues to build national momentum after a year of over 40 live performances and two Josie Music Awards nominations for 'Group of the Year' and 'Song of the Year.'

The Trunk made its radio debut November 9th on The Grass Roots Show (The Rock Station 97.7 WLER - www.977Rocks.com). Cover art was created by Linda Weber.

The Perfect Storm Celebrate Mediabase Activator Success with New Single 'Song for My Friends' - and Everyone's Invited to the Party

Riding high on their Top 50 Mediabase Activator chart success, alternative Rock/Pop sensation The Perfect Storm return with a fresh burst of energy in their latest single, Song for My Friends, from their debut album "Maiden Voyage." Released via MTS Records with major distribution through Virgin/Universal, the track is a vibrant celebration of friendship, unity, and the sheer fun of making music that connects.

Song for My Friends is everything its title promises - bright, anthemic, and instantly singable. Driven by electric guitars, soaring harmonies, and a rhythm tailor-made for late-night jam sessions, the track channels the exuberant chemistry that has made The Perfect Storm one of the most exciting new acts in Alternative Pop.

"We wanted this song to feel like a toast," says the band. "It's about our friends, our fans, and every wild night that reminds you why you started doing this in the first place. After seeing the chart success of our last single, we just wanted to celebrate and have fun with this one."

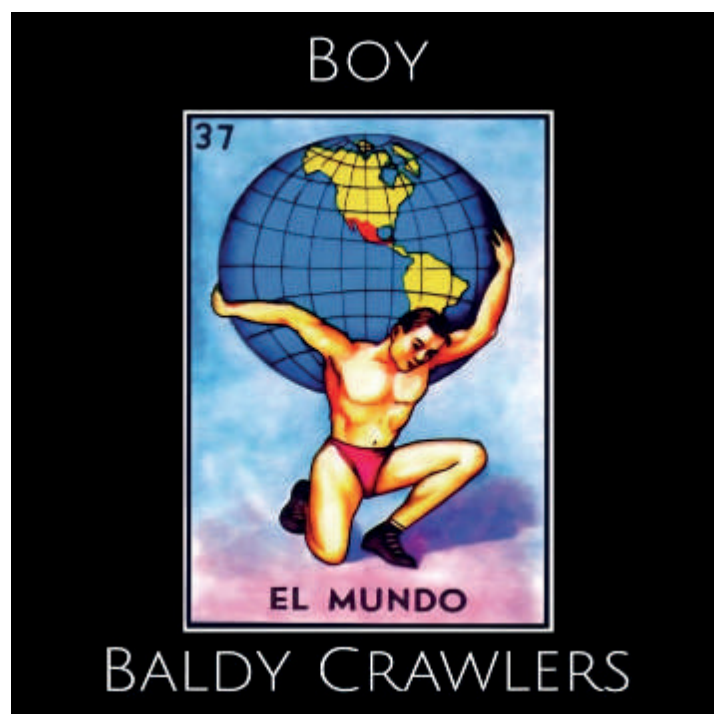

The new single is the latest look into their LP “Maiden Voyage,” an album that captures both the introspective heart and unbridled joy of The Perfect Storm’s sound. Following their national radio traction, “Maiden Voyage” expands their audience with a set of songs built for connection, catharsis, and crowd singalongs.

“The Perfect Storm are redefining what it means to be indie and radio-ready,” says Michael Stover, MTS Records. “They’ve proven they can hang with the biggest names on the Mediabase charts - and now they’re having a blast doing it.”

Baldy Crawlers Announce Haunting New Single ‘Boy,’ Out January 9 via MTS Records

Following the critical acclaim of their evocative single Bring Me a Flower, California-based folk-Americana project Baldy Crawlers returns with a haunting new release, Boy, available January 9, 2026, on MTS Records. Written and produced by Martin Maudal, the track continues his unique fusion of handcrafted sound and lyrical introspection - this time delving even deeper into the abstract spaces between identity, love, and the ineffable.

Boy began not with an idea or image, but with a feeling. “I’m not sure I can even tell you what this song is about,” Maudal admits. “This one was music before it was words. The chords came first, and then there was that first line - ‘Your back is a road, boy.’ It just stared back at me. The rest of the song followed where it wanted to go. I didn’t try to force meaning into it. I think people will have to find their own.”

That intuitive, open-ended approach gives Boy its haunting depth. The song unfolds like a riddle, each verse a brushstroke in a portrait that never fully reveals its subject. Over Maudal’s signature hand-built guitar tones - rich, resonant, and unmistakably organic - the arrangement gains additional dimension through the contributions of an exceptional ensemble: Elizabeth Hangan delivers a stirring and intimate lead vocal, while Norrel Thompson and Maudal himself add harmony vocals that echo like spectral companions. Marc Weller’s guitar, Carl Byron’s Hammond B3, and Ross Schodek’s bass enrich the soundscape with warmth and tension. Maudal further grounds the track’s rhythmic pulse with acoustic guitar and drums, shaping the song’s dreamlike motion with both delicacy and drive.

Musically, Boy drifts in a dreamlike space between folk minimalism and art-song atmosphere. Sparse yet immersive, the arrangement leaves room for silence to speak as powerfully as sound.

For Maudal, who’s as much a philosopher as a musician, Boy represents a new chapter in his artistic evolution. “It’s not a song I understand,” he says. “But maybe we don’t need to...”

With Boy, Baldy Crawlers invite listeners not to solve a song, but to sit inside it, to rest in its mystery, and maybe find a reflection of themselves along the road.

Ashes Awaken Release Powerful New Single ‘For You’

Christian metal band Ashes Awaken continues their faith-fueled ascent with the release of their newest single, For You. Following the breakout success of their debut track A Better Way, the band once again blends unflinching honesty, massive sound, and spiritual intensity - this time with a deeply personal cry for forgiveness and renewal.

Written by Michael Stover, For You is both a confession and a declaration of faith. Anchored by the stirring lyric “Oh Father, dear Father, forgive me for what I’ve done,” the song explores the tension between human frailty and divine mercy. Over a thunderous wall of guitars and dynamic drumming, Ashes Awaken deliver a message that is as raw as it is redemptive: God's grace is stronger than guilt, and surrender is the pathway to strength.

"This song came from a place of brokenness," says Stover. "It's about owning your mistakes, calling out to God, and finding that He's been faithful through it all. For You is our prayer in the form of a metal anthem."

Musically, For You showcases the band's signature blend of melody and muscle, pairing emotionally charged vocals with anthemic choruses and intricate guitar work. The song's progression mirrors its spiritual journey: starting in lament, rising through confession, and erupting into victorious worship. The refrain - "God of mercy, God of glory, faithful through and through" - serves as both worship and warfare, an offering of praise in the midst of struggle.

For You is the second single from Ashes Awaken's forthcoming debut album, "Rise," due February 6, 2026. The album charts a redemptive path through darkness, faith, and spiritual rebirth, cementing the band's place as one of Christian metal's most authentic new voices.

Argyro Throws Fans a 'Lifeline' with New Single and Music Video 'Lifeline'

Multi-instrumentalist, charting songwriter, and featured actor Scott Argyro, known musically as Argyro, has just released his brand-new single and official music video Lifeline.

Lifeline, originally featured on Argyro's acclaimed album "Glitterati," stands out as one of his most emotionally resonant and lyrically urgent works. Built on themes of unity, compassion, and human connection, the track showcases Argyro's hallmark multi-instrumental performance - drums, bass, keys, guitars, vocals - and his instinct for blending introspective songwriting with cinematic Pop soundscapes.

The accompanying music video visually amplifies the song's message with a bold, heartfelt narrative that reflects the tension and hope embedded in the lyrics.

Argyro's 2025 has been marked by continued chart accomplishments, with multiple tracks from "Glitterati" landing international airplay and streaming traction. His music's blend of melodic Pop, rhythmic pulse, and thoughtful lyricism has drawn comparisons to artists like John Mayer, Rob Thomas, and Chris Isaak, while firmly establishing Argyro as a standout voice with a sound all his own.

With "Glitterati" continuing to build momentum, an Amazon Prime film introducing him to new audiences, and upcoming projects already in motion, Argyro's cross-platform rise shows no signs of slowing.

Styx and Chicago 'The Windy Cities Tour - All the Hits... Your Kind of Tour' Kicking Off in July

Two of music's biggest bands, legendary multi-Platinum rockers Chicago and Styx, got their start in Chicago, and now they're joining together for their first-ever co-headlining tour, bringing the best of the Midwest to venues nationwide with "The Windy Cities Tour - All The Hits... Your Kind of Tour" that kicks off July 13 in West Palm Beach, FL and wraps September 6 in Los Angeles, CA.

"We are excited about the summer tour," says Chicago trumpeter Lee Loughnane. "Chicago has never toured with Styx before so it's going to be a lot of fun, we're looking forward to it."

"In my early days of live performing I had several mentors who were kind enough to let me join in and play with them despite not being able to read charts," adds Styx singer/guitarist Tommy Shaw. "Rod Henley, Ricky Parsons, Bobby and Larry Moore, Eddie Wohlford, Wimpy Jones, Country Boy Eddie and others gave me a shot. And I am thankful for that. By the time Chicago released their first album, I had enough experience to begin learning their amazing music on my own. Now, the idea of Styx touring with Chicago is a major thrill all on its own. We can't wait to spend the summer with them!"

Brandon Lake And Cody Johnson Record Duet On 'When a Cowboy Prays'

Brandon Lake and Cody Johnson are releasing their duet, When a Cowboy Prays. The single will drop on January 9, 2026.

Back in October, Lake confirmed that he would feature CoJo (Cody Johnson) on the track, something that the fans have been requesting: "I'm not telling anybody except for those who showed up for my tour, but you can't post about it 'cause it's a secret. This song, I'm about to sing, I just recorded with Cody Johnson. And we're gonna come out with it. I heard all of your comments. I wrote this song, and you're like, 'This sounds like CoJo. You gotta get CoJo.' I was like, 'Honey, already on it.'"

Lake also recently posted on Instagram a photo of him inside a studio wearing headphones and a lyric sheet with Cody Johnson's name, subtly indicating that the two are already in the studio recording the song. His announcement also comes after Lake won 'Christian Music Songwriter of the Year' and 'Christian Music Song of the Year' for Hard Fought Hallelujah during the ASCAP Awards. He hinted back then that there would be more Christian and Country collaborations in store for him in 2026: "Christian x Country Collision incoming 2026. To God be the glory!"

Jelly Roll Invited To Join The Grand Ole Opry

The Grammy-nominee's reaction was captured live during his recording of 'The Joe Rogan Experience.'

During a recent appearance on the Joe Rogan Experience, Jelly Roll broke down into tears after receiving an invitation to become a member of the iconic Grand Ole Opry. The invite came in the form of a video message from Jelly Roll's idol and friend, Craig Morgan, whose music has had a major impact on the Grammy-nominee's life and career.

"Hey Jelly, my friend," began Morgan in his message filmed inside the Opry. "I want to take a minute today to say congratulations on all the great things happening in your career and to thank you for the positive difference you are making in the lives of so many people who need the help."

He continued, "I'll never forget meeting you on the Grand Ole Opry, and how much it meant to me to hear you say my music helped you get through some really tough times. That's one thing Country music does really well. Who would have ever dreamed I'd be back at the Opry House today to say... Jelly Roll, you are officially invited to become a member of the Grand Ole Opry. It's an honor to say, 'Welcome to the family, brother.'"

By the time the video ended, the singer was already overcome with emotion, even asking host Rogan for a hug. "I bet I'm the first person to ever get invited to the Grand Ole Opry on a podcast!" he exclaimed.

Jelly Roll made his Grand Ole Opry debut on November 9th, 2021. Before sharing Morgan's video message with his guest, Rogan played a clip from that night. In the recording, Jelly Roll discusses how Morgan's song Almost Home provided him with inspiration and strength when he was formerly incarcerated. When he was released, he was able to see Morgan perform the song live at the Opry, and even pointed out his seat from the stage.

Mark J. Bott

On Stage = BIG GUY

Singer & Songwriter

With a countenance that bore the rugged marks of his experiences – a visage reminiscent of Patrick Swayze's iconic character in "Road House," adorned by six fractured noses, a shattered jaw, and numerous other surgical repairs – it became abundantly evident that his talent for singing far surpassed his aptitude as a brawler.

Mark's lineage is deeply rooted in innovation, tracing back to his great-grandfather, Hugh Chalmers, the visionary who established the esteemed Chalmers motor car company in Detroit, Michigan. This automotive powerhouse, in its burgeoning years of the early 1900s, provided livelihoods for more than four thousand individuals. Furthermore, Mr. Chalmers demonstrated an extraordinary foresight by conceiving the Most Valuable Player (MVP) award for Major League Baseball in 1910.

Inspired by this rich heritage, Mark naturally gravitated toward the automotive sector, embarking on his career as Cook County's youngest automotive salesperson at the remarkably young age of seventeen. He meticulously built a life, raising a family of four children, and through sheer determination and astute financial management, he achieved the significant milestone of acquiring his very own Toyota Dodge dealership.

Demonstrating exceptional business acumen, Mark propelled the dealership's sales to unprecedented heights, effectively doubling its revenue, before making the strategic decision to sell the thriving enterprise. This pivot marked the beginning of a profound commitment to humanitarian endeavors. Driven by a desire to serve, he founded Operation Kidsafe International, a transformative initiative dedicated to establishing free child safety centers across North America. Over two decades, his impactful program has provided crucial safety and educational resources to over 1.8 million children, safeguarding their futures. New Docudrama 'Amazing Grace: The Untold Story' Offers Fresh Perspective on the World's Most Famous Hymn

More than two centuries after former slave trader John Newton penned Amazing Grace, celebrated today as the world's most popular and beloved hymn, a new 64-minute docudrama, "Amazing Grace: The Untold Story," is now available to purchase or rent. Commemorating Newton's 300th birthday, the film was produced by Haven Ministries in conjunction with Kappa Studios (The Chosen, Reagan).

"Amazing Grace: The Untold Story" explores Newton's life, ministry, and enduring legacy, chronicling his harrowing and troubling existence - from nearly perishing in a storm at sea to captaining a slave ship and even being enslaved himself - before surrendering his life to Christ and boldly preaching the Gospel during the Great Awakening.

Directed by Reuben Evans and Zachary Weintraub and filmed on location at Newton's church in Olney, England, where the ubiquitous hymn was first sung, "Amazing Grace: The Untold Story" stars award-winning Welsh actor John Rhys-Davies (The Lord of the Rings, Indiana Jones) as the elder Newton, while acclaimed actors Jeremy Theobald and Louis Tomeo portray younger versions of the hymnwriter and preacher.

Narrated and co-executive produced by Charles Morris, host emeritus of Haven Ministries, the docudrama showcases a performance from renowned British gospel ensemble The Kingdom Choir and also features insight on Newton's life from bestselling author and speaker Joni Eareckson Tada; Dr. Bruce Hindmarsh, the world's leading Oxford scholar on Newton; Marylynn Rouse, founder of the John Newton Project; and John Coffey, professor of history at the University of Leicester, among other experts.

"He's known for writing Amazing Grace, but few today know the true story of John Newton," says David Wollen, president of Haven Ministries and host of "Haven Today." "How could a former slave trader become a beloved pastor and one of history's most influential hymn writers? One word: grace. At 'Haven Today,' this is the kind of story we love to tell, but it's rare to find one that testifies as powerfully to the grace of Jesus as this one does."

"Based on years of research, 'Amazing Grace: The Untold Story' offers a vivid account of the life of John Newton and the story of how his hymn came to be cherished around the world," explains Dr. Bruce Hindmarsh, co-executive producer of the docudrama and a preeminent Newton expert. "Tracing his descent from childhood innocence into the wickedness of the slave trade, and then his slow, painful redemption, the film gives new meaning to the words 'that saved a wretch like me.' By God's grace, a slave trader became a leading abolitionist, and his hymn became a universal anthem of hope worldwide. Today, more than ever, we need to hear this message. It is what our troubled world so desperately needs for the healing of our divisions, and, indeed, for the healing of our souls."

"Amazing Grace: The Untold Story" is available on DVD at www.exploringamazinggrace.com or for purchase or rental via Amazon.

Randy Maynor the writer of the song "That's When God Moves" was inspired at the end of 2022 after I had watched my father spend 3 years fighting lung cancer. He kept believing as did I that God would heal him and He did. But sometimes it's just not on this earth. I sent this song to David right after and it touched him and I'm so honored he believed in it and that this positive message has blessed so many hearts.

CENTRAL FLORIDA'S NEWEST FORCE IN MELODIC ROCK

By Cory Parker

Creation V is one of Central Florida's most compelling new rock collectives—four seasoned musicians whose paths, histories, and decades of experience have converged into a sound that feels both classic and freshly charged. Built on real musicianship, deep camaraderie, and a shared passion for crafting songs that resonate, the band brings together major-label pedigree, touring grit, and a renewed creative fire. Their story isn't about chasing trends, but about rediscovering the joy of making music that moves people.

In a music landscape crowded with trends that come and go, Creation V stands out for something refreshingly rare: musicianship. Real musicianship. The kind forged in clubs, studios, and decades of lived experience. The kind shaped by major-label history, relentless dedication, and a shared belief that great songs still matter.

Based in Central Florida and powered by four seasoned artists - Dave Mikeal, Jimmie Smith, Keith Coville, and Jay Newcomer - Creation V is more than a band. It's a convergence of stories, influences, and lifetimes spent chasing the perfect sound. Their music blends melodic Rock, emotional depth, and polished production, anchored by the kind of chemistry that only comes when every member has already lived a full musical life before stepping into the same room.

And at the center of it all is a simple truth: Creation V is a band built on experience and driven by passion.

DAVE MIKEAL: THE ARCHITECT OF THE SOUND

Every great band has a heartbeat, and for Creation V, that heartbeat is guitarist, vocalist, and producer Dave Mikeal. A native of Orlando, Dave's musical journey began at age six on the piano, but it was the guitar - discovered at twelve - that became his lifelong companion.

By his early twenties, Dave was already performing with numerous Central Florida groups, sharpening his skills and building a reputation as a versatile, emotionally expressive player. At twenty-five, he landed a career-defining role as lead guitarist and vocalist for the Atlanta-based A&M Records group MPG. That opportunity opened the door to further work with CBS and Retrospect Records, expanding his reach and solidifying his place in the industry.

Dave's career outside Creation V is extensive, from major-label releases to film scoring to high-level production work, and that depth of experience is woven into every note the band creates. His songwriting is melodic and cinematic, his guitar work both precise and soulful, and his leadership gives Creation V its sonic identity.

JIMMIE SMITH: THE GROOVE THAT HOLDS IT ALL TOGETHER

If Dave is the heartbeat, Jimmie Smith is the pulse. Originally from Alabama, Jimmie moved to Orlando in the late 1960s and quickly immersed himself in the local music scene. He began playing in clubs at an early age, absorbing influences from bass legends like Jack Bruce, Paul McCartney, and Tim Bogert.

His résumé includes performances with major-label artists such as The Pat Travers Band and Tin House, experiences that shaped his tone, feel, and stage presence. Jimmie's playing is warm, grounded, and deeply musical - the kind of bass work that doesn't just support a song, but elevates it.

He and Dave have been friends for years, and that camaraderie translates effortlessly into their musical chemistry. Together, they form the backbone of Creation V's sound: tight, melodic, and unmistakably seasoned.

KEITH COVILLE: THE ENGINE WITH PERFECT TIMING

Behind the kit sits Keith Coville, a drummer whose precision and energy give Creation V its drive. Originally from Goshen, New York, Keith now calls the Orlando area home. He has spent the last twenty years performing professionally, playing in local clubs, tribute bands, and touring with independent artists such as Blackbird Abbey and 8 Lives Left.

Keith brings a modern edge to the band - crisp timing, dynamic control, and a deep understanding of how to support a song without overpowering it. His versatility allows Creation V to move seamlessly between Rock, Pop, and cinematic textures, and his vocal abilities add yet another layer to the band's rich harmonies.

Creation V describes him as a perfect fit - a drummer whose professionalism and passion elevate every performance.

JAY NEWCOMER: THE VETERAN WITH A RENEWED FIRE

If Creation V has a secret weapon, it's Jay Newcomer. Born in Washington, D.C., Jay began performing in local nightspots at just fifteen years old. In 1973, he joined The Joe Savage Band, embarking on a fourteen-year run with a high-energy, multi-media, theatrical Rock show that toured extensively.

Jay eventually settled in Orlando in 1987, where he became a fixture in the Lake Buena Vista music scene, performing in several hotels before securing a five-year residency at Disney's Pleasure Island beginning in 1990. His keyboard work is expressive and cinematic, adding depth, color, and emotional resonance to Creation V's arrangements.

After an extended hiatus from the stage, Jay found renewed passion and purpose when he joined Creation V. When he's not performing, he and his wife Mary devote their time to giving back to the Orlando community, a reflection of the heart he brings to the band.

Their songs carry the weight of experience and the spark of reinvention. Their performances are tight, energetic, and emotionally charged. And their chemistry - forged through friendship, respect, and shared history - is unmistakable.

Creation V is a band with something to say, something to give, and something to prove. And as they continue to build momentum across Central Florida and beyond, one thing is clear: This is a band worth watching - and a sound worth turning up.

www.creation.band

A BAND BUILT ON EXPERIENCE - AND READY FOR WHAT'S NEXT

Creation V is not a group of newcomers hoping to find their footing. They are veterans - musicians who have lived the highs and lows of the industry, who have toured, recorded, collaborated, and grown through decades of musical evolution. Their sound reflects that maturity: polished but passionate, melodic but powerful, familiar yet fresh.

CHAD RIVETTE

By Robin Tanner

Chad Rivette was born into a musical family in Cornwall, Ontario, where the soundtrack of his childhood ranged from his mother's soothing lullabies to his father's lively guitar riffs. Surrounded by music from the very beginning, Chad developed a deep love for Country music that would shape the course of his life. "I come from a musical family," he says. "My biggest influence was my father, Frank Rivette, a well-known musician for over 45 years. Then my whole family of musicians - and of course Diamond Rio, Alabama, Chris Stapleton, Luke Combs... just so many, to be honest."

Chad's first public performance came at just fourteen years old, when he stepped onto a small community stage and sang George Strait's classic The Chair. The performance won over the crowd and earned him his first paid gig at a local Cornwall bar called P.G.'s. More importantly, it ignited something inside him - a passion for performing that has never faded. "I've been playing in bars since I was fourteen," Chad recalls. "I performed every weekend. I never had a Friday or Saturday off in thirty-three years."

In January 2023, Chad took a major step forward by beginning to write his own music. His songwriting draws heavily from his upbringing in Cornwall - the joys, the heartaches, the simplicity of small-town life. His honest lyrics and authentic sound quickly resonated with listeners, helping him build a loyal and growing fan base.

Later that same year, Chad experienced a breakthrough moment. His first self-written song, a heartfelt tribute to his late mother Bonnie, soared to number one on Music Mafia Radio. The emotional ballad not only introduced him to a wider audience but also earned him a nomination for 'Male Artist of the Year' 2023 on Music Mafia Radio, a milestone that affirmed he was on the right path.

Chad's music blends traditional Country roots with modern storytelling, marked by emotional depth, intricate guitar work, and a soulful, unmistakable voice. His sound honors the genre's heritage while bringing a fresh, contemporary edge that appeals to today's listeners.

His career has continued to rise. In 2024, Chad won the ISSA 'International Entertainer of the Year' GOLD Award in Atlanta, Georgia, a moment he describes as unforgettable. "Having my eighth #1 on radio... and then multiple award nominations in 2025, it's a childhood dream come true!"

His latest single, Pour Decisions, is already gaining traction, and he has eight more songs scheduled for release later this year.

Chad also carries with him a deeply personal spiritual experience that continues to shape his life and music. "I saw my mother in my kitchen drinking coffee at 3:00 AM," he shares. "It was two weeks after she passed away. When I realized what I was seeing, I turned back, and she was gone. But the chair was pushed out, and an empty coffee mug was on the table where she had been sitting. It showed me the afterlife exists, and it gave me hope that I'll see her again. I miss her so much."

For Chad Rivette, music is more than a career, it's a calling. "My goal is to never stop chasing my dream of hitting the big stage and sharing my music globally," he says. "Music is my life. It's what I'm meant to do. I feel it inside me."

As Chad continues to write, record, and perform, his presence in the Country music world grows stronger. With his down-to-earth personality, relatable lyrics, and undeniable talent, he isn't just a singer, he's a storyteller. And his journey stands as a testament to hard work, passion, and staying true to one's roots.

Where Are They Now?

A Retrospective Glimpse at Yesterday's Rising Music Stars
Who Became Icons and Where They Are Today

THIS EDITION: Deniece Williams

By Robin Tanner

Described as “one of the great soul voices” by the BBC, Deniece Williams first achieved success as an award-winning singer, songwriter, and producer in the 1970s and ‘80s. She is best known for the songs Free, Silly, It's Gonna Take a Miracle, and two Billboard Hot 100 No.1 singles Let's Hear It for the Boy and Too Much, Too Little, Too Late (with Johnny Mathis).

Deniece Williams was born in Gary, Indiana and grew up singing in the Church of God in Christ. Her favorite vocalists were Carmen McRae and Nancy Wilson, and she was also inspired by her parents, both of whom sang. From 1968 through 1970, while in her late teens, Williams recorded six singles for the Chicago-based Toddlin' Town label. None of the singles charted, but I'm Walking Away and Mama, I Wish I Stayed at Home became favorites of the U.K.'s northern soul scene. Williams temporarily left music behind to pursue nursing education and steady employment and started a family.

Through her cousin, Williams met Stevie Wonder - another one of her favorites - backstage at a concert. This led to an audition and her joining Wonderlove, Wonder's group of background vocalists. Williams performed and recorded with the Motown artist for a three-year period that included the sessions for “Talking Book,” “Fulfillingness' First Finale,” and “Songs in the Key of Life.” During this time, Williams contributed background vocals to recordings by numerous other artists ranging from Don Everly and Kenny Rankin to Esther Phillips and Roberta Flack. She also co-wrote material for the Soul Train Gang (including the Wonder-arranged, Baby Open the Door, featuring her on co-lead vocals) and Merry Clayton (How'd I Know.)

Williams pursued a solo career and signed a production deal with Maurice White and Charles Stepney and joined the roster of Columbia Records, home to White's band, Earth, Wind & Fire. Williams released her first album, “This Is Niecy,” in 1976. Produced by Stepney and White, it featured the number 2 hit Free, which also crossed over to number 25 on the Hot 100. Cause You Love Me Baby and That's What Friends Are For also charted. Williams co-wrote all three of the singles, and among the deep cuts was Slip Away.

Williams' second album, recorded in the wake of Stepney's death by heart attack, yielded the Top 20 soul single Baby, Baby My Love's All for You. After that, she connected with fellow Columbia artist Johnny Mathis for Too Much, Too Little, Too Late, which was a number one hit on the Soul, and Adult Contemporary charts. Its success led to the duet partners making the album, “That's What Friends Are For.”

Williams changed direction somewhat with her third solo album, her first to bear the imprint of Maurice White's Columbia-distributed ARC (short for American Recording Company). Released in 1979, "When Love Comes Calling" saw Williams work separately with David Foster and Ray Parker, Jr. as co-producers. The biggest single from the album was I've Got the Last Dance.

Williams had two more LPs to cut for ARC. "My Melody" and "Niecy," respectively released in 1981 and 1982, were well-received collaborations with Philly Soul originator Thom Bell. That resulted in the singer's third gold album (for the former), Top 20 soul entries with What Two Can Do and Silly, and a number one soul hit with It's Gonna Take a Miracle, her first Grammy-nominated recording (for 'Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female'). In '82, Williams and Mathis were heard together again on the theme for the television sitcom Family Ties, Without Us.

Williams moved back to Columbia records for her next two albums teaming up with George Duke. In 1983 she released "I'm So Proud," highlighted by the number nine Black Singles hit Do What You Feel, earned Williams' second Grammy nomination for 'Best R&B Performance' and was followed by another hit duet with Mathis, an update of Love Won't Let Me Wait.

Deneice was approached by Paramount to record the bubbly Let's Hear It for the Boy for the soundtrack of "Footloose." The song scored a global hit that in the U.S. alone topped the Hot 100, Black Singles, and Dance charts. Next Love also charted from the album "Let's Hear It for the Boy," which was among the nominees for 'Best R&B Performance' in the female category. Let's Hear It for the Boy itself was nominated for a Grammy in the pop performance field.

Rather than take advantage of her considerable Pop momentum, Williams opted to record her first Contemporary Gospel album. The decision wasn't all that surprising given that her LPs dating back to "This Is Niecy" contained faith-based material. Whiter Than Snow was nominated for a Grammy as 'Best Inspirational Song.' "So Glad I Know" arrived on the Sparrow label in 1986 and fared well on Billboard's Gospel and Christian charts. It garnered three Grammy nominations. Williams took the award for 'Best Soul Gospel Performance, Female' (I Surrender All) and with featured guest Sandi Patty won 'Best Gospel Performance by a Duo or Group, Choir or Chorus' for They Say, the solo original version of which appeared on "I'm So Proud."

Williams continued to release secular material, too. Her Gospel recordings for Sparrow resumed in 1989 with "Special Love" and guest appearances on "Children in Praise" by the West Angeles Church of God in Christ Angelic Choir. By the end of the decade, she was nominated for four additional Grammys, winning 'Best Gospel Performance, Female' for I Believe in You (off "Water Under the Bridge"). During the '90s, Williams made guest appearances on albums by the likes of Nancy Wilson, George Duke, and Stevie Wonder and released three Gospel albums on as many labels. "Lullabies to Dreamland" was issued in 1991, trailed five years later by "Love Solves It All." The third one, "This Is My Song," won the 1998 Grammy award for 'Best Pop/Contemporary Gospel Album.'

Nine years passed before her next release, "Love, Niecy Style," on which she covered R&B classics spanning the '60s, '70s, and early '80s. Duke, Wonder, and Earth, Wind & Fire's Philip Bailey were among the collaborators on the album, produced by Bobby Eli, a Philly Soul vet who worked on Williams' early '80s sessions with Thom Bell.

Williams' soaring, four-octave soprano voice made her one of the most distinctive talents to arrive during the Soul era. Since her recording debut in 1968, she established herself in the 70s, first as part of Stevie Wonder's Wonderlove, then as a songwriter, and finally as a solo artist who could also produce and arrange her own material while partnering with R&B and Jazz giants.

Williams, now 75, has continued to perform and act, and has recorded the occasional single, such as the independently released 2020 track When You Love Somebody. This was followed by a new EP titled "Gemini," released in the fall of 2021. On June 30, 2021, she was honored as one of the first ever inductees into the Women Songwriters Hall of Fame. In the Spring of 2023, Williams was also bestowed with the keys to the city of Kingston, Jamaica.

TAUREN WELLS

A Voice of Joy, Purpose, and Redemption

By John Lanier

In the ever-evolving landscape of Christian music, few artists have managed to bridge the gap between worship and mainstream appeal with the grace, authenticity, and spiritual depth of Tauren Wells. A Grammy-nominated singer, songwriter, pastor, and now author, Wells has emerged as a cultural architect, crafting music and messages that resonate far beyond the walls of the church. His journey is one of calling, creativity, and unwavering faith.

Early Life and Musical Roots

Born on April 7, 1986, in Battle Creek, Michigan, Tauren Gabriel Wells was raised in a household steeped in music and ministry. His father, Phil Wells, was a church musician, and his mother, Joan Bowers, shared a love for musical theater. From a young age, Tauren was captivated by the sounds of worship and the rhythm of faith. At just nine years old, he began singing in church choirs, and by sixteen, he was leading worship.

His formative years were shaped by a deep desire to serve God through music. Encouraged by his pastor, Tauren learned to play piano, drums, and guitar - skills that would later become foundational to his artistry. He attended Indiana Bible College, where he co-founded the Christian Pop band Royal Tailor with DJ Cox and Blake Hubbard. The group's infectious blend of Funk, Soul, and Pop earned them two Grammy nominations and a Dove Award for 'New Artist of the Year.'

"I want to be a pioneer for Christian music," Wells once said. "But I'm not trying to be famous or be cool for the sake of being cool. I want to say something that impacts people."

Salvation and Spiritual Awakening

Though raised in a faith-filled environment, Tauren's personal encounter with salvation was not just a moment, it was a journey. In interviews and sermons, he often reflects on the transformative power of grace and the joy found in surrender. His new book, "Joy Bomb," reveals how the Beatitudes in Matthew 5 reshaped his understanding of happiness and holiness. "Joy is the overwhelming flow of God's character present in every aspect of our lives," he writes. "You are actively participating in God's plan for your life."

He adds, "Before joy impacts everybody else around us, it has to detonate within us. And that's why I wanted to call this book 'Joy Bomb.'"

Solo Career and Musical Impact

After Royal Tailor disbanded in 2015, Tauren launched his solo career with the "Undefeated" EP in 2016. His breakout single Hills and Valleys became an anthem of hope, earning platinum certification and a Grammy nomination.

"I wrote Hills and Valleys when I was walking myself through some hills and valleys," he shared. "My wife said, 'This is a song people need.' That shaped my whole writing process."

His debut album, "Hills and Valleys," was followed by "Citizen of Heaven" in 2020, featuring collaborations with Kirk Franklin and Jenn Johnson. The album's standout track, Famous For (I Believe), topped Christian radio charts and earned another Grammy nod.

"I'm trying to have music that resonates with people who feel like there's been a low bar set for their lives, and to raise that bar," Wells explained. "With God, we find our greatest possibility for potential."

Family Life and Ministry Partnership

Tauren's personal life is deeply intertwined with his ministry. He married Lorna Macey in 2011 at Royalwood Church in Houston, where her father, Pastor Ronald Macey, officiated the ceremony. Together, they have four sons: Kanaan, Lawson, Navy, and Banner. "We said this from the beginning: This is a family calling," Tauren shared. "Before the world hears a note, I share it with my wife and kids."

Their family calling extends beyond music. The couple co-founded Prisma Worship Arts School, a private music academy in Houston that nurtures young creatives in faith and artistry.

Church of Whitestone: A New Chapter

In 2024, Tauren and Lorna planted Church of Whitestone in Austin, Texas, a vibrant, life-giving community built on the vision of helping people discover their God-authored identity.

“My mission is to call greatness out of others,” Wells said. “I tried to do that through music, but nothing gives you a better opportunity to develop people than being a pastor.”

Joy Bomb: A Bold Invitation to True Happiness

Released in May 2025, “Joy Bomb: Unleash Jesus’s Explosive Joy for an Extraordinary Life” is Tauren’s literary debut. The book explores the Beatitudes as a roadmap to lasting joy.

“Smiling Christians doesn’t mean weak theology,” Wells said. “If God is a God of infinite joy, why would we not be people who experience and project that same type of joy?”

Latest Music and Radio Single

Tauren steps into 2026 with a fresh outpouring of worship through his newest single, Breathe On It, officially announced on January 22. The song is a tender, Spirit-soaked plea for God’s presence to revive weary hearts and awaken faith in a distracted world. Built on a slow-burning melody that swells into a powerful declaration, the track showcases Tauren’s signature vocal purity while leaning deeply into the pastoral heart that now shapes his ministry.

“Sometimes what we need most isn’t a breakthrough or an answer,” Wells shared in his announcement. “We just need the breath of God to fill the room again.”

Breathe On It follows the momentum of his 2025 worship EP “Let the Church Sing,” which produced the widely embraced single Thank You For The Cross. While that project centered on congregational worship, this new release feels more intimate - a personal altar call that invites listeners to slow down, listen, and let God move.

With more new music expected throughout 2026, Tauren continues to merge his roles as pastor, worship leader, and artist, crafting songs that speak directly to the spiritual hunger of the Church.

Legacy and Influence

With over 1.2 billion global streams, 10 Grammy nominations, and a growing ministry footprint, Tauren Wells stands as a beacon of faith, creativity, and purpose. His ability to connect with diverse audiences - whether through music, preaching, or writing - reflects a rare blend of talent and humility.

“Keep your head small, your heart big, and your eyes open,” he writes in Joy Bomb - a mantra that captures the essence of his life and ministry.

Michael Sparger

My name is Michael Gordon Sparger. I'm a 48 year old singer/songwriter. I was born and raised in Lafayette Indiana. I grew up with my mom, Dad, brother Gary, and sister Kathy. I'm the youngest of the 3. My life growing up, I always had hard work instilled in me. My Dad worked hard his whole life and my amazing Mother raised us kids. I always had what I needed thanks to my parents. I decided to join the Army when I was 20 years old. I am very patriotic and proud to have served with the 101st Airborne Division. I have always had a love for music. It started when I was very young. I got the privilege of listening to my grandpa Oathel sing, write music and play guitar. I also grew up with the honor of listening to my late Uncle Phil play country music in a band with other family members. I grew up listening to the best country music. I'm heavily influenced by Waylon Jennings, Merle Haggard, Conway Twitty, and many other greats. I started picking a guitar when I was just a kid, with a great mentor such as my grandpa and Uncle Phil, I picked guitar up quickly, then came the singing. I used to sing with my Mother a lot when I was young. My mom had the voice of an angel. I had a son in 2013 named Owen. He is the highlight of my life. He is my little prodigy. He's 11 and can sing like you wouldn't believe. My Dad who everyone calls Pop travels with me every weekend to play my music. He's like a roadie one would say. I couldn't do it without him. I have released one album, and I'm currently working on my second as we speak. It's going to be a good one. I'd like to dedicate my music career to my late mother Elizabeth Sparger.

Thank you Michael G. Sparger.

Mark S. Dubbels

Yielding to the Hand of God

By John Lanier

From the pews of an Indiana church to the stages of worship gatherings today, Mark S. Dubbels has lived a life shaped by music, ministry, and obedience to God's call. His story is one of passion, perseverance, and a heart that longs to lead others into the presence of the Lord.

It all started with a solid foundation. Growing up in Indiana as a pastor's kid, Mark S. Dubbels was immersed in the rhythms of church life from the very beginning. He was in services several times a week, surrounded by the sounds of hymns and the cadence of Scripture. His earliest memories are filled with music ministry - playing keyboard, singing, and serving wherever he was needed.

From children's church to youth group worship teams, and even nursing home ministry, Mark learned early that worship was not performance but service. He recalls with a smile the church Christmas production where he played Young Scrooge, a role that revealed both his creativity and his willingness to step into whatever opportunity God placed before him. These formative experiences gave him not only skill but also a heart for worship that has never faded.

As the years passed, Mark's love for music deepened. He became a worship leader and a member of several teams, always with the same purpose: to lead people into the presence of God. Whether standing before thousands at a conference or gathered with a handful of believers in a small fellowship, his focus remained steady.

"I desire that intimate touch and fresh anointing that only God can give," Mark explains. "My prayer is that it will flow through my music and touch people to a point of life-changing relationship with God."

For him, worship is not about the size of the crowd but the sincerity of the encounter. Each song is an invitation to draw near to God, to experience His presence in a way that transforms hearts.

For many years, Mark resisted the idea of writing original music. "There are already plenty of songs out there to play and sing,” he often said. But in 2019, he began to sense a nudge from the Holy Spirit - a quiet but persistent call to create.

Obedient to that prompting, he wrote his first song. What began as a single act of faith soon became a new chapter in his ministry. By December 2022, he released his first single, marking a milestone in his journey. Since then, he has written around 45 songs, each one born from prayer and reflection.

“If God will give me songs to write, I will be obedient and take the steps to make my music heard,” Mark affirms. His hope is simple yet profound: that someone, somewhere will hear his songs and feel the presence of God surrounding them.

Mark currently resides in the Indianapolis area with his wife. Together, they enjoy the outdoors, riding and training horses, and marveling at God’s creativity in nature. For Mark, these moments of quiet reflection are more than hobbies - they are sources of inspiration. Observing the intricacy of creation reminds him of God’s artistry and often stirs new melodies in his heart.

Marriage, too, has been a steady anchor. The partnership he shares with his wife reflects the same devotion he brings to ministry: faithful, nurturing, and rooted in love. Their shared life is a testimony to God’s goodness and a reminder that ministry begins at home.

Mark’s journey has not been without trials. He acknowledges his imperfections and the challenges he has faced, but it is precisely those experiences that deepen his worship. “I can sing and worship without reservation because I have encountered the life-changing love of God,” he says. “God is faithful beyond measure.”

This authenticity - passion refined by fire - resonates in his music. It is not polished performance but lived testimony. His songs carry the weight of experience, the honesty of struggle, and the joy of redemption.

Though relatively new to calling himself an “artist,” Mark S. Dubbels is no stranger to ministry. His songs, his worship, and his life reflect a simple truth: God is faithful in all things.

In a world often marked by uncertainty, his voice carries clarity and conviction. He represents a growing movement of worship leaders who are stepping into original songwriting, offering fresh expressions of faith that speak to today’s generation. His music is not about recognition, it is about obedience.

Mark’s journey reminds us that when we yield to the hand of God, He can take even the smallest offering and turn it into a song that touches lives.

From his childhood in Indiana to his present ministry in Indianapolis, Mark S. Dubbels has lived a life shaped by worship. His story is one of obedience, creativity, and grace - a reminder that God’s faithfulness is the true foundation of every song.

As he continues to write, record, and lead worship, his prayer remains constant: that through his music, people will encounter the presence of God and experience transformation.

Life is a journey. Passion is refined by fire. And through it all, God is faithful in all things.

Bobby Chitwood

Faith, Family, and the Road That Built Him

By Robin Tanner

Bobby Chitwood may have Texas roots, but Wyoming has become home. A seasoned Country artist with songs charting on Billboard and the Texas Music Charts, Bobby's journey has been anything but ordinary.

He has weathered the highs and lows of life on the road, including a grueling schedule of over 300 shows a year. That led to a serious vocal injury. But Bobby's faith, family, and loyal fan base gave him the strength to see it as part of God's plan. "I focused on songwriting during that time," he says. After therapy and vocal rest, Bobby returned stronger than ever, releasing a new album "It's Just Me," which is filled with songs that reflect the conservative values he holds dear.

Tracks like That's Just Me and That Dash speak to character and legacy, while his single Redneckery brings a bonfire-season vibe with a playful edge. He also teamed up again with Cowboy Troy for Twisted, a rowdy anthem that became a digital hit.

Bobby grew up in Brownwood, Texas, then moved through West Texas and Abilene. "I started playing music pretty young," he recalls. "My grandfather was a Christian singer-songwriter who had a song, Good Morning God on Chapel Records back in the sixties. I learned three chords from my mom to play Good Morning God on my grandfather's guitar."

By his teens, Bobby was performing regularly. In college, he entered the Jimmy Dean Country Showdown and made it through several rounds. "I caught the music bug from there," he says. "College was kind of my dad's thing but he said, 'I'll support you any way you want me to.'" After college, Bobby hit the road, playing honky-tonks across the country.

Bobby's family has a long history of military service: his dad and grandfather both served with other generations behind them. Bobby is also a veteran. He mentions, "I served three years as artillery." When vocal rest sidelined his music career, he leaned into that background. "Thank you, Dad, for pushing me to stick with it. I still get to do it. I maintain my commercial pilot license, and I still get up in the air."

After graduating college, Bobby had already built a strong presence in the Texas red dirt scene, covering legends like George Strait, Alan Jackson, and Merle Haggard. "Our first show outside of Texas was up in Idaho," he says. "We were still playing covers, and it all went really well in Texas. But apparently, it wasn't good enough for Idaho. They wanted more Rock, and we were playing George Strait!" Booked for a two-week gig, Bobby and his band were let go after the first week for being 'too Country.' "That really blew me away," he says. "A little Texas boy, I was definitely surprised by that!"

But fate had other plans. Bobby's drummer was from Cody, Wyoming, and suggested they play a small club there to earn gas money. "That's actually where I met my wife," Bobby says. "So, I moved to Wyoming."

Bobby appeared on the Dr. Phil Show to share his story as a touring and recording artist on the road. "At that time, I was still touring pretty heavily," Bobby recalls. "I hadn't hit 300 days a year yet, but I was close. We talked about the difficulties, the things you go through as a family. I had two young babies at the time. That's how we ended up on the show. It was eye-opening - hearing his perspective. That appearance was directly tied to the amount of time I was spending on the road."

The new album, "That's Just Me and a Little Redneckery" is filled with tracks from faith, family fun and, of course, being a redneck! "A lot of the songs on the record I wrote myself or with other writers," Bobby says. "But That's Just Me - that was going to be a song that was definitely just me. This is who I am."

This time around, Bobby released the record independently. "I didn't have a label behind it, so I had a lot more artistic leeway, to do what I wanted and say what I wanted to say. And That's Just Me had to be on the record, for sure."

Chitwood shares insight on the album's tracks. "That Dash," Bobby says, "is one of my favorite songs on the record. A buddy and I were talking. I don't even remember how we got there, but we started talking about how we all have a start date and an end date. And everything else is really defined by that little line between the two numbers. I knew there had to be a song in there." He co-wrote it with Nashville songwriter Cory Barker. "We kicked some ideas back and forth and ended up with that song. I think it just speaks to a lot."

"The track Redneckery is a fun song," Bobby laughs. "It was inspired by my daughter. We were talking about the kind of stuff I did growing up in Texas - shooting stuff, being outside all the time - and she said, 'Dad, you're such a redneck.' I never thought of it that way. That's just what we did." They coined the term "redneckery" to describe those moments, and the song was born.

Bobby shares the inspiration of Little Fuzzy Slippers? Superman, Strong. "I have two daughters, and they both inspired that song. I started writing it years ago but never put it on a record. When we got into the studio this time, I had just finished it, so it made the cut."

The first single was Twisted (feat. Cowboy Troy) "I've known Troy for years," Bobby says. "We first performed together at Cheyenne Frontier Days and became fast friends. When Big & Rich went on hiatus, Troy started his own company, and I was under his management for a bit."

Later, Bobby started writing Twisted and thought, 'Man, it'd be cool if Cowboy Troy threw his bit in there.' They traded ideas, and Troy jumped on board. "We were supposed to release the whole record in 2020 or 2021, but we all know what happened then. So, everything got delayed. And here we are now."

"On the track, Bible and Sweet Tea, that one was inspired by my daughter too," he adds. "A few years ago, she mentioned something about 'Bible and sweet tea.' I don't know if she saw it when we were visiting family in Texas, but she helped me write that one. She got her first writer credit on it, it's kind of her song."

"Being out on the road is a lot more refined now than it used to be," Bobby explains. "It used to be constant. Now I take dates as they come - in intervals. We're doing some charity events, which I really enjoy."

As for the shows? "They're always high energy. We have a good time. My connection with the crowd just seems to be organic. I've played for 30,000 people and I've played for 300, and they all have their own dynamics. Some of those smaller shows I really enjoy because you can interact with the crowd more. It's a little more personal."

Bobby has partnered with Wounded Warrior Homes, helping build accessible housing for veterans with physical disabilities. He also teamed up with Hydrate Heroes, a sports drink company that donates profits to military and first responders.

"I've got a song called Everyday Heroes to support Hydrate Heroes," he says. "They're putting QR codes on their packaging that take you straight to the single. A percentage of both the song and the drink goes to law enforcement, military, and firefighters."

A special moment for him was performing his song, A Soldier's Battle. "I wrote that one years ago - just an acoustic version on one of my EPs," Bobby says. "I got to perform it at Congress and the Senate for a Veterans Day event. That one definitely, made an impression."

Bobby - being a husband, father, and a veteran - has relied on his faith even in the tough times to keep him grounded. "There was a time I was kind of separated from my faith," Bobby shares. "And my girls honestly redirected me back toward Christ." He recalls a moment in Denver: "I was super sick in a hotel room. I missed my family. I prayed and said, 'God, I just want a reason to go home.' About three weeks later, my vocal issues started popping up. I wasn't looking to come off the road - I was paying my guys, my crew, the bills. But I knew Christ was there, directing where I needed to be. I needed to be home. I have no doubt my prayers were answered. If we just listen to the Lord, we'll go a long way."

As 2026 approaches, Bobby is planning more charity events and live shows. "I really want to interact with fans more like I used to," he says. "I'm really going to be pushing this new record." With a love for God, family, his country and music, Bobby Chitwood continues to travel down the road that built him.

ICON SERIES

Celebrating the Legends

This Edition
ANNE MURRAY

By Robin Tanner

Anne Murray is a global music icon whose signature voice and timeless catalogue have defined a career spanning over five decades. A trailblazer across Country, Adult Contemporary, and Pop, the Canadian native sold over 55 million albums, earned countless accolades, and became one of the most influential female artists of all time.

From her humble beginnings in Nova Scotia, Murray's passion for music led to early performances across Canada and her debut album "What About Me." In 1969, she signed with Capitol Records and released "This Way Is My Way," featuring Snowbird - the breakout hit that made her the first Canadian solo female artist to reach No. 1 on the U.S. charts and earn Gold certification.

Throughout the 1970s and 1980s, Murray's crossover success continued with hits like Danny's Song, You Needed Me, Shadows in the Moonlight, Broken Hearted Me, Daydream Believer, Could I Have This Dance, A Little Good News, and Just Another Woman in Love. Her music resonated across genres and generations.

Her accolades include four Grammys, 26 JUNO Awards (the most in history), three American Music Awards, and multiple honors from the CMA and CCMA. She is a Companion of the Order of Canada and was recently awarded the 2025 JUNO Lifetime Achievement Award. Her star shines on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, Nashville's Walkway of Stars, and Canada's Walk of Fame, with inductions into several Halls of Fame.

Murray's influence paved the way for Canadian artists like Céline Dion, Shania Twain, K.D. Lang, Alanis Morissette, and Sarah McLachlan. With 32 studio albums, 15 compilations, over 1 billion global streams, and tours spanning the U.S., UK, Australia, Europe, and beyond, her reach remains unmatched.

On October 27, the Opry House hosted The Music of My Life - An All-Star Tribute to Anne Murray, featuring Trisha Yearwood, Martina McBride, K.D. Lang, Kathy Mattea, Lorrie Morgan, Pam Tillis, Shenandoah, The Gatlin Brothers, Collin Raye, Natalie Grant, Michelle Wright, Victoria Shaw, and appearances by Brenda Lee, Randy Travis, and Barry Trotz.

To celebrate her 80th birthday, Murray announced her 33rd studio album "Here You Are," released September 5, 2025. The project features 11 unreleased tracks recorded between 1978 and 1995, revitalized by Grammy-winning producer Bob Rock and mixer Adam Greenholtz. Highlights include Rest Easy (In My Love), Bring All Your Heartaches to Me, and Straight From the Heart, with new background vocals by Anne and her daughter Dawn, and fresh instrumentation by her nephew Dale. The album's cover showcases a 1971 painting by Canadian artist Harley Brown. Available on CD and vinyl - including a limited gold edition with signed lithograph - "Here You Are" expands Murray's legacy with music that bridges past and present.

Beyond the stage, Murray's philanthropic work includes the Anne Murray Centre, a charitable foundation and museum she continues to oversee. Her legacy as a groundbreaker, mentor, and national treasure remains firmly intact.

JOHAN SMYTHS

"Last Night"

At Radio now and available at all major digital music outlets

Johan Smits (aka John Smyths) was born in March 1961 in the old town of Nijmegen and was introduced to the world of music by his parents and older brother. Although it wasn't the kind of music he liked, it was music.

When his wild years were over, he got more and more into country music and listened to Conway Twitty, Hank Williams, Waylon Jennings, Kenny Rogers, Tammy Wynette and so on. Moving to Germany, he would go to the studio regularly to record covers of some well-known country songs, even recorded three of his own songs and was on stage several times, mostly in Germany and Belgium. While he might have only started releasing music on digital platforms under the moniker John Smyths, Johan Smits has been sharing singles for years – so he's not all that much of a newbie on the scene.

Raised on a diet of Kiss, Van Halen, Iron Maiden and AC/DC, Smyths found a base in the oldschool rock scene; however, he's not afraid to saunter across different genres and found himself wading through country music with Hank Williams, Kenny Rogers and Waylon Jennings.

For 2025, John Smyths was on stage in Viechtach (Bavaria), Gerolstein, Stolberg, Wolfhagen, Nijmegen (NL) and many more. He has been awarded for his song "Loving You Makes Me A Better Man" at the Red Carpet Show International in Wageningen (NL) where he also was on stage. Another nomination was done by "the Elite Music Awards" in the States. He released his single at the end of August, called "Now I'm Wiser" which got great critics all over the world. And now getting back with "Last Night" which is a beautiful Country ballad.
